A Foxy, as he was lovingly known all of his life, was born on February 13, 1933 in Junction City, AR, the third of seven brothers and sisters. He graduated from Junction City High School in 1951 and was employed by Arkansas Power and Light. When a dark-haired student nurse, Earline Pine, caught his eye, a blind date arranged by a mutual friend was the beginning of a love that lasted 61 years. A Foxy was drafted into the Army during the Korean conflict, serving in Japan as a radar operator. Upon his return to the states, he resumed his employment with Arkansas Power and Light in El Dorado, AR, where he operated the first "bucket truck" in the area. Following a work-related accident, he enrolled as a forestry major at Louisiana Tech in Ruston, graduating in 1961. Early in his career, Foxy worked as quality control manager for several lumber companies in Louisiana and Mississippi, moving into lumber sales with Hood Lumber Company of Hazlehurst, MS in 1984. For 30 years Foxy traveled far and wide on his desk telephone, becoming affectionately known by those in the lumber industry as "Lumber One." He served as President of the Mississippi Lumbermen's Association in 2003.
